MOUNTAIN WEST ANNOUNCES 2019-20 SCHEDULE & #MWTAKEOVER MEDIA EVENT

The MW social accounts will be taken over by institutional members in the days leading to the season

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. – The Mountain West announced today the 2019-20 women's basketball conference game slate along with the league's plan to host #MWTakeover for the second consecutive season. Last season, the social media takeovers allowed the student-athletes and institutions to share what makes their programs and campuses unique.

The MW utilizes a scheduling format that allows each institution to play nine home games and nine road contests, it's the seventh season the scheduling has been organized in this layout.

The 2019 Mountain West Women's Basketball Championship tips off on Sunday, March 1 and concludes with the championship final on Wednesday, March 4 at the Thomas & Mack Center in Las Vegas.

The two-time regular season champion Boise State Broncos will start the league-season on Dec. 4 at home against New Mexico, who earned a bid to the WNIT last season and won 14 league games.

During #MWTakeover, Mountain West institutions will have access to the Mountain West Facebook, Instagram and Twitter accounts for a single day. They will have the ability to broadcast to those watching what a day-in-the-life of a student-athlete is like at their institution. Fans are encouraged to watch, like and tweet along as the league's women's basketball teams invite you into their community.

2019-20 MW BUCKETS & BULLETS

- In 2019-20, Boise State's head coach Gordy Presnell returns a talented roster that won 28 games last season and garnered the MW's automatic bid to the NCAA Tournament. The Broncos fell in the first round 80-75 in overtime and with the return of guards Braydey Hodgins and Riley Lupfer will look to win 20 games for the fourth consecutive season. The Broncos will participate in the preseason WNIT. They won a program record 16 league contests last season.
- Wyoming announced the hire of Gerald Mattinson to lead the Cowgirls program on May 7th after the long, successful career of Joe Legerski. Mattinson is no stranger to the Wyoming program, having served on the team's bench as associate head coach for the past 12 years. He will lean on Taylor Rusk who returns for her senior campaign after she averaged 33 minutes and almost 10 points per game last season.
- Fresno State in 2019-20 will miss recent graduate and dominant guard Candice White, but will pass the torch to talented student-athletes in junior guard Aly Gamez and forward Maddi Utti. The duo each started all 32 games last season, scoring in double-digits and having a significant rebounding effect.
- A 24-7 record is how the New Mexico Lobos closed last season, with head coach Mike Bradbury winning more than 20 games each of the last two seasons. The team will return All-MW selection Aisia Robertson following injury and will return sharpshooters in Ahlise Hurst and 2018-19 MW Freshman of the Year Jayla Everett.
